U.F.A. Convention Now Under Way

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 22.—The amount of organization work necessary to maintain the membership of the U.F.A. at its present level, and the difficulty in collecting dues from its members was reflected in the deficit of $4,000 on the year's operations shown in the annual financial statement presented by the board of directors at the convention on Tuesday. Total disbursements for the year totalled $32,324 as compared with receipts of $28,324. The deficit for 1929 compares with one for $1,889 during the previous year, and resulted in the surplus of the association being reduced from $3,720 to $4,112.

In presenting the report, the vice-president, H. E. G. H. Schofield drew the attention of the delegates to this situation and suggested that it might be necessary to curtail a number of the services provided to the locals by the association, or to increase the annual membership dues.

Resolutions dealing with phrases of the tariff question came in for their full share of discussion during the afternoon. One strongly worded resolution called on the dominion government to abrogate the Australian trade treaty on the ground that it unduly discriminated against agricultural products and that the arrangement was economically unsound. Robert Gardiner M.P., outlined the stand of the U.F.A. federal members in opposition of the treaty, and expressed strong opposition to its effect on the agricultural industry.

Another resolution urged on the dominion government that an increase in the British preference be made, as a step toward freer trade relations with other countries and the reduction of the costs of living and production.

Mr. Gardiner in speaking to this resolution explained the international trade situation and pointed out that purchasing a larger volume from Great Britain would have the effect of raising the standard of living and increasing the purchasing power of the British pound, which in turn would create greater markets for Canadian exports, and he contended that this policy was preferable to increasing retaliatory tariffs against other countries.

The convention, in discussing another resolution, went on record as being opposed to any form of protective tariff. Delegates Lloyd Brown of Bristol and W. Taylor of Big Valley, emphasized the principle of free trade for which the organization has always stood.

There appeared to be little doubt of the almost unanimous support of the organization for the policies of its president. This was demonstrated in the discussion of a resolution commending H. W. Wood's stand in opposing the compulsory procedures. Carl Axelson of Byngville, who spoke on practically every resolution introduced during the afternoon, made the only suggestion indicating lack of faith in the president's judgment, but he received little support. When challenged by E. J. Garland, M.P., to elucidate his suggestions, he failed to convince the convention that his objections to Mr. Wood's actions had any very hard sound basis.

Many suggestions were made as to means of reviving interest in a number of country locals and it was decided that the locals should be encouraged to carry out a membership drive in the early summer months. Constitutional amendments approved at the night session decided that membership fees paid at any date would cover the current year from January 1 to December 31, but that three months grace would be allowed for payment of dues.

A move to raise the annual fee to the central office to $3.50—an advance of 75 cents was defeated. Intelligent buying, intelligent selling and efficient farm management are the three basic factors of constructive co-operation, commented A. Simmonds, president of the Saskatchewan Wholesale Co-operative association, in a speech before the convention.

The United Farmers of Alberta backed their president, Henry Wise Wood, against criticism by Aaron Sapir, internationally known co-operative marketing advocate. The farm body in annual convention expressed confidence in the ability of Mr. Wood as head of the provincial wheat pool.

Pronounced opposition to the approving resolution developed in early discussion on the matter, Carl Axelson of Byngville, reputed leader of a "left wing" U.F.A. movement, sought to have the convention refuse support of their president.

Mr. Wood, who has been U.F.A. president for 14 years, said the Alberta pool since its organization was absent during the discussion.

The resolution was as follows: "Whereas there has been considerable criticism through the press by Aaron Sapir of H. W. Wood's system of conducting the wheat pool business.

"Whereas the wheat pool is functioning very satisfactorily at present.

"Therefore be it resolved that we do express our confidence in the ability of Mr. Wood and his co-directors to conduct the pool's business in the future."

H. E. G. Schofield, vice-president of the U.F.A. denied the accusation of Mr. Sapir that Mr. Wood had been "kicked into the leadership of the pool." He stated that the Saskatchewan section of the United Farmers of Canada had written him following an investigation of the matter on their own behalf, saying, "so far as evidence I have on the matter, points to the fact that Mr. Wood has been wholeheartedly working for the good of the farmers in the West."

In opposing the resolution Mr. Axelson went far back into the records of the U.F.A. in his endeavor to show that Mr. Wood had consistently ducked the idea of the pool. Mr. Axelson stated that he had "inside information" that the western grain trade planned a large amalgamation by which they hoped to reach some "working agreement" with the Canadian wheat pool on the handling of wheat.

Prof. Touche Will Reform Orchestra

Mr. William M. M. Touche has returned to his teaching after an absence of five weeks at his home in Chicago. Inspired by the music he has listened to in that city, and by the efforts of the orchestras in the High Schools there, he is anxious to re-form an orchestra in Lacombe, and any of his former pupils who care to come in are asked to accept this as an invitation.

While in Chicago Mr. Touche has made the discovery of an instrument called Gamble "Euph" which is being used in the school orchestras throughout the country to take the place of the regular violin, viola, cello and bass. As these cost just a small fraction of the regular instruments, Lacombe would do well to consider the purchase of a number with a view to introducing a good sized orchestra in the High School. Twenty or more pupils could be taught at one time.

The Work of the District Nurse

Most intimate of all phases of the public health work of Alberta is that carried on by the district nurses. These nurses work in remote settlements where the people are cut off from medical aid by lack of roads, railway services, or distances. Their task is to go into the homes and look after the needs of groups of people who are establishing themselves on the land, with a view to safeguarding their health, thus encouraging them to remain and make their homes.

The district nurses is herself a pioneer, living under pioneer conditions among pioneer people. She always travels alone, her days are narrow and difficult. In the course of time "her people" pass out of the pioneer stage, but she does not go with them. Her face is then turned to another pioneer field where she carries on again until the people are well established, a doctor has come in, and they no longer need her as they did.

Nursing districts are usually about thirty miles in length and ten miles wide, though topographical conditions may alter these dimensions. In this block of country anything and everything may happen and usually does. The nurse may be called upon to help a little New Canadian enter this world; to give first aid in case of some accident; or if necessary take the patient to the hospital; or in case of minor accident, to give all the aid the injured one requires. She looks after the sick and comforts the distressed. Her home is frequently a social centre for the young people of the community who find in the nurse an understanding friend.

Life is no bed of roses for the district nurse. Morning, noon and night she is at the call of the people. She travels over her vast domain, on horseback, in wagons, by spooler, on rare occasions in automobiles, and often on foot. Roads are frequently bad, and trails next to impassable, but this does not deter her from answering the call. With her stars for company and thought of the look of relief which she will see on her patient's face when she enters the sick room, she journeys along and does her bit for humanity.

One of the greatest hardships she experiences is coming home to a cold house. It requires a good deal of philosophy to enter a house after a long drive in the bitter cold of winter, kindle the fire, and thaw out food of a frosty nature before supper can be prepared.

Because of the diversified conditions of the province, the attitude toward the creation of a nursing district is exceedingly elastic. The service given is the service the people ask for. The settlement forms a district and arrange with the government to send a nurse. On their part they undertake to supply her with a comfortable, furnished house, water, plenty of firewood, and transportation within the district. The government pays the nurse's salary. A nominal fee is charged the patients in cases where it will not work a hardship, but this is never pressed.

There are five district nurses working in the province. Miss Mary Ellis Conlin, one of the first nurses to take up this work, is at Jarvis; Miss Katherine Cole at Wainman; Miss Angela M. Fleming at Pandory; Mrs. Olga Fieffel at Peart; and Mrs. Joyce Hyde at Sturgeon Lake, a new nursing district 80 miles from Grande Prairie, and the most isolated of all the fields. During the past summer, English women doctors were placed on fields at Northwold, Lac La Poudre, and Slave Lake, formerly staffed by district nurses. The reorganization of the Slave Lake district is under consideration, and it planned to place a nurse in this field as well as the doctor. Miss Olive Grant, a nurse, public health worker, is located at Stenmore. As she is within reach of a doctor, she does not take charge of maternity cases, but makes follow up visits and is otherwise engaged in district nursing and educational work. This district assumes some financial obligations.

Medical Student at University Found Dead

Edmonton, Jan. 20.—Hamish Kelly 18, Lethbridge, a first year medical student at the University of Alberta was found dead in the snow beneath the window of his residence room in Athabasca Hall at 8:30 Sunday morning by one of the maids employed at the institution.

Death had apparently taken place as a result of freezing, in five below zero weather, although there was a mark on the centre of the forehead possibly as the result of falling from his window, on the first floor of the building, about 12 feet from the ground.

The body was discovered by the maid as she was proceeding to her morning work from Assiniboia, the most northerly building. It was lying beneath the window at the Northern end of the building.

How the deceased fell from his window is a mystery. He had been in the building all evening, and was seen about 12:30. He had chatted with many of the other students during the evening and to one he had remarked that the "would see their names in the paper on Monday," evidently referring to a successful passing of a medical test. It is thought Kelly may have walked in his sleep.

Kelly was a son of Rev. W. E. Kelly, of Lethbridge, Alberta.

Section Man Killed Near Burbank

Accidental death was the verdict returned by Coroner Dr. Backus of Red Deer, in the case of L. B. Burdick of Burbank, Alberta, C.N.R. section man, who was killed when struck by a train on Friday night.

Evidence at the inquest, according to a report made to the provincial police, showed that Burdick was walking along the track, east of Red Deer, during a snow storm. Due to the storm, he did not see or hear the approaching train, while the engineer's view was also blinded by the falling snow.

These include large areas of land, forests, water powers, fisheries, mines, oilfields, and represent a value in excess of a billion dollars. The agreement will be ratified by Parliament at its next session early this year.

Schools In Soviet Russia

The first five years after the great October Revolution certainly proved to be very hard times for everything and everybody connected with the educational system of Soviet Russia. Hungry, alone, without considering a deficiency of almost everything, made it impossible to keep the schools open; the old school books were damaged and it took considerable time before new ones with reliable Communist ideals could be supplied. However, the "Isposkol Komintern" worked out directives for all types of schools and universities and the local authorities in the towns and of the "Gybierna" were told to find premises, build new school-houses and repair the old ones.

In 1929 I visited some of the Leningrad schools and was much surprised at the progress made in a short five years and it would have been impossible absolutely to have accomplished the task of "reopening the schools under new management" had the teachers and pupils not also co-operated to the greatest possible extent with the school government and made every effort to re-build the educational system of the land. Teachers and pupils worked hard repairing the buildings, making school furniture and apparatus and instruments necessary for the teaching of science—and all this voluntarily, without any compulsion from the Government.

The Moscow Government developed and conducted a campaign of nationwide propaganda with the aim in view of overspreading all Russia with schools, which would year by year turn out young Communists by the million, ready and willing to work and sacrifice themselves for their proletarian motherland. The first task of the Government was directed towards getting rid of the heritage of illiteracy taken over by the Tsarist regime. "Down with illiteracy!" could be read on walls and railway stations and public places, and not only schools but club-circles (small societies) were busy teaching the Russian language. Illiteracy has been largely eliminated in the larger towns and cities and, by using former red soldiers as teachers in the country side, it will soon become a thing of the past everywhere.

The main endeavor, apart from the inculturation of Communist doctrine, seems to be to develop the work of the brain and of the hand at the same time; this occasions no little difficulty but the teachers strive to give attention to individual pupil needs rather than to the mass and they endeavor to diagnose the "best" of every pupil. Pupils are allowed to attend other schools if necessary to enable them to specialize or learn a trade.

An examination of the curriculum of the second grade (the first grade is merely a school for beginners) reveals the fact that the learning of Communist dogma is the most important item of the course of study and this propaganda of the Soviet government is very effective in making sure the new Army and the Soviet Government and in instilling the conviction that a world revolution along proletarian lines is near. Everything must be seen and taught from the proletarian and Bolshevik point of view and it is taught that no further progress is possible in Russia until the world-wide revolution is achieved. I was asked everywhere: "When will the revolution come in your country?" and when I answered "I don't know," surprise was manifested that I was not informed upon such an all-important matter. Anti-religious propaganda is also a part of the educational scheme. In schools I observed pictures of drunken priests and monks making love to peasant girls, pictures all drawn by the pupils themselves. This anti-religious propaganda was rather dangerous at first, for considerable opposition, sometimes violent was shown by the parents when their children came home and tried to prove (by order of their teachers) that there was no God. On questioning pupils in a Leningrad school I learned that a few believed there was a God and one little girl told me that He took care of Lenin but I found not one case where there was any belief in Jesus. If the Bolsheviks have failed to make atheists of the grown-ups it must be said that they have been very successful in making atheists of the children. It has sometimes been a hard task and there have been hard struggles between teachers and parents to capture the minds of the children in this regard.

In the matter of the teaching of language—Tsar-Russia certainly was far in advance of Soviet Russia. Formerly French was the foreign language most taught, now it is German which is anticipated will be of most service later, especially in Leningrad. When in New Petersburg I taught Swedish to some of the teachers. This enabled me to get fairly well acquainted with the system of instruction given there. In the high school I found that English was taught for four years but the pupils' knowledge of that language was not very thorough probably for the reason that there was little touch between Russia and English speaking peoples, their relations being then officially severed. However, a placard on the wall seems to give a significant reason for maintaining the teaching of English: the placard read: "Learn the language of your worst enemy."

Hitting a 50-mile an hour clip, a special Canadian Pacific train recently carried two-and-a-half-year-old Delphis Martin, who was thought to be dying of intestinal infestation, from Sudbury to Toronto, for a blood transfusion in the Toronto Western Hospital. Leaving at 1.06 the train reached destination at 6.45, all traffic having been held aside for the special. At 8 the operation was performed and half an hour later the boy was snuggled at his bedside. He is now well on his way to recovery.

Fighting against Atlantic winter gales the cable ship John W. MacKay has just returned to the coast after another trip of the seas in effecting repairs to the high speed cable of the Commonwealth cable system over which much of Canadian Pacific cable business is carried to Europe. The cable from a depth of 2 1/2 miles and at a point 80 miles from the coast, the break being part of the job to be done.

W. Moore of Moose Jaw. The latest record for "Canary Korndyke Alcaraz" is 26,401 pounds of milk with 1,234.50 pounds of butterfat.

Honey to the amount of $5,181 pounds was produced in Nova Scotia in 1929, according to official figures, and the 1929 output will likely be much larger as the summer season of that year was much more favorable, says Philip Bishop of Greenwood (Port William), the largest bee-keeper in Nova Scotia.

Within four to five years thousands of farmers throughout the province of Saskatchewan will have the benefit of all-weather roads running in all directions. The provincial government plans to spend $5,000,000 annually during the next few years on the construction of six main highways, all-weather surfaced.

Inquiries In Immigration

Economic students in England, are, it is well known, very much interested in emigration to the dominions, not in the hope that it will be a complete cure for unemployment in their own country (still less with any idea of transferring the problem from the Mother Country overseas) but in the belief that it is the only permanent remedy since, once the emigrant has overcome the initial difficulties of settlement in a new land, he will never return to England for permanent stay.

What these difficulties are and why scores of settlers, even settlers who have been partially trained at English agricultural schools, return disappointed to their homes Mr. George Gregory of Birmingham has endeavored with some success to analyze in his Report to the town Migration and Assistance Committee on whose behalf he paid a 4-week visit to Canada last August and September. He makes it clear that he does not pretend to have gathered all the facts. In that short stay but a perusal of his Report will convince the Canadian that he at least investigated thoroughly.

Doubts of the soundness of his conclusions occur to the reader, however, when he says that an immigrant "with a knowledge of the country, only to be obtained by experience should earn from $5 to $6 a day during the harvest, with no difficulty in finding employment during the winter months." If he could visit Western Canada at the present moment he would probably revise the second part of this statement and, in fact, he does modify it when he says:

One of the most serious obstacles to immigration is the Canadian winter, not mainly on account of the severe cold as many are apt to think but because of certain employment, only possible during the open months—from the beginning of May to the end of October—Those who are unfortunate enough not to secure employment during winter months drift to the large towns where they exist on casual work, if obtainable, until spring arrives.

Mr. Gregory has personally inquired into the reason for deportation of "trained" workers which has led many Canadians to the conclusion that the English training school is a failure. He weighs the evidence with something like judicial insight:

The men's story was that they had been informed they could earn $50 per month, but that when engaged they were only offered from $10 to $15, their future wages to depend upon the value the farmer set upon their services after trial. They also complained of the long hours of labor and the poor accommodation. There is probably an element of truth in the men's story. They arrived in Canada practically unskilled in farm work and unused to long hours of work. The farmer would certainly not pay high wages for unskilled work until he was assured of value for wages paid. It is possible also that the employee would have to work long hours with indifferent accommodation. In addition to this he may feel lonely and homesick a condition aggravated by the absence of companions, and perhaps the farmer's casual though probably just, criticism of his work. If after this he is told he is worth no more than $15 per month, he may leave discouraged to try another farm with the same unfortunate result. His return to the immigration centre is then inevitable.

One or two conclusions are possible. It may be that either the English or the Canadian authorities, or both, in their anxiety to encourage an emigrant have painted the picture in too glowing colors; that is to say, they have not warned the emigrant that Canadian farm work is not limited to so many hours a day nor that home sickness, a much more serious malady than those who have not suffered from it realize, is almost sure to overtake him and must be fought. Of this the clerk of committee said:

One of the most insidious ills which the majority of emigrants have to combat is home-sickness. It attacks all in varying degrees and often when success is in sight it is sacrificed for a call many find hard to resist.

It may be that a partial remedy lies to the hand of Canadians themselves, especially those by adoption who have passed through the stage themselves and outgrown it. It is a notorious fact that the English-Canadian is less organized to care for his newly arrived compatriot than many of continental origin.

Unfriendlyness, even hostility at the hands of his employer, the immigrant, of course, must be prepared for, for there are good employers and bad the world over.

Sixteen People Killed In Airplane Crash

Los Angeles, Jan. 20.—Fourteen passengers and two pilots of a transcontinental air transport, Maddox lines tri-motored plane, were reported by Chief of Police Cops of Ocean-side, California, to have been killed or burned to death last night, when the giant air liner crashed near the coast highway 14 miles north of there. Chief Cops, one of the first to reach the scene, said he was satisfied that all the occupants were dead. The plane left Agua Caliente Sunday evening for Los Angeles.

Larger Salary for Alberta Premier?

The premiership of this province carries heavy responsibilities and it must be recognized that a man like Mr.
Brownlee is entitled to a larger financial reward than he receives. His abilities are such that in the practice of his profession or in the employ of a private corporation he would have an income much in excess of that which he derives from his present position. A substantial addition to his remuneration was suggested last year, but for some unexplained reason no action was taken and it is most desirable that it should be done at the coming session.
A resolution to that effect was passed on Monday by the U.F.A. convention for the federal riding of Peace River and it will be presented to the Provincial body in Calgary this week. C. L. Gibbs, the Edmonton Labor representative was among those who expressed his strong approval of the proposal. There is little doubt that it would have the emphatic endorsement of other members of the house and of the great majority of Albertans.

The premier's salary is $8,500, in addition to which he has the seasonal indemnity of $2,000. In other provinces which are comparable to our own, the occupant of the post is more liberally treated. Both British Columbia and Saskatchewan pay $9,000, with the indemnity the same as here.
The Ontario premier receives $12,000.
Though the population there is much larger there is no reason to believe that the duties which Mr. Ferguson is called upon to discharge make more exacting demands than do those that fall to Mr. Brownlee.

Generally speaking, Canadians have been remiss in the financial provision that they make for those bearing the chief burdens of governmental work.
So, in determining what salary the Alberta premier ought to receive, it would be a mistake to be guided wholly by the practice elsewhere in the dominion. What should be given principle consideration is the nature of the services that he performs, as well as the income that he would obtain if he abandoned his public for private activities. Ordinary fairness and regard for the interests of Alberta both justify a substantial increase for the head of the provincial administration.

Mothers and the Public Schools

It cannot be anything but gratifying to the Minister of Education, Mr.
Baker, to hear the Consolidated School Bill, due to come before the Legislature again this session, being thoroughly discussed and con. It cannot be anything but satisfactory to him even that it should be criticized constructively, since by such means he learns of possible real weaknesses which can be remedied and suspected fanciful weaknesses which he can explain. It is even possible that the consolidated bill will be better and stronger than ever now that almost a year has elapsed since it was voted in the Legislature a year ago. And in the meantime it has been carefully considered by the people of Alberta.
The bill aims primarily at the improvement of the quality of education available in the country school. Not all the trustees appear yet satisfied that the re-organization of executive and administrative functions are the best way of achieving the end sought.
The bill, on the other hand, appears to have the general support of the teaching profession, while the Tuesday session of the United Farm Women of Alberta saw an enlightening debate from yet another point of view—the mothers.

That there should have been division of opinion was as natural as it was desirable since careful thought on any public question tends to create divergence of view rather than to modify it. Unanimity one way or the other is often a sign that a dominating figure has stamped popular opinion in his own way. Therefore, the debate of the school question by the Alberta farm mothers is especially enlightening particularly the resulting vote which put the organization on record as in support of the bill and urging that it be put into operation as soon as possible.

Of all the classes of society who may be supposed to be vitally concerned in the educational problem of rural Alberta, surely it will be conceded that the parents of farm-bred families are most vitally concerned of all. The trustees may regard the question from an official point of view. The teacher may look upon it with a professional eye. But the parent is concerned with it in results—with some regard also, of course, to the tax bill. If the Minister can convince them that these conditions will be satisfied he will be provided with a telling argument when the time comes to meet opponents, if any, in the Legislature.

A special meeting of the Loyal Temperance Legion Band will be held on Sunday at 2:00 p.m. in St. Andrew's School Room. Members please bring Northern Messengers.

THE FARMER AND HIS BUSINESS

(The Alberta)

Sitting in and listening to the deliberations of the United Farmers of Alberta now in convention here, or reading reports of their meetings continues year by year to impress the fact that the farmer of today is essentially a man of affairs—and that the Alberta farmer is a type by himself. At least in Western Canada even the carterists have ceased to portray him in a sort of symbolic way as a goat-like character chewing a wisp of straw and carrying a carpet bag. It is not necessary to warn him nowadays not to blow out the gas because even if he is not accustomed to the ways of gas it is probably because his farm home and buildings are lit by electricity. He is a primary producer. He is in the same class as the prospector and the mine operator.
Owner, perhaps, of thousands of dollars worth of power-driven machinery he is a manufacturer. Facing problems of finance, cost accounting, profit and loss every waking moment of his day, he is a business man. To be a Western farmer today is one of the biggest of big businesses.

One is impressed with all of this in finding the United Farmers of Alberta attacking problems of buying and selling with all the shrewdness of bankers and approaching ponderous economic questions with the wisdom of statesmen. If anyone expected to hear immature theories discussed by Alberta farmers in convention he must have been surprised to find that not even in legislative chambers were problems approached so scientifically, so logically and with such obvious forethought as at this U.F.A. convention. Indeed, it might be possible to sit in a legislative chamber for a week and hear less sound sense than has emanated from the farmers' convention in a single day.

W.M.S. MEETING

Many items of interest were dealt with at the regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society, held at the home of Mrs. G. Barbour, on Tuesday afternoon. The Pentecost was the subject for the devotional period; also extracts taken from the new book "From Jerusalem to Jerusalem." Mrs. Macintosh read a short paper on "Temperance and the Church," showing the responsibility of the church toward the question of temperance. Mrs. Macintosh's report on the Christian Stewardship, suggested that each member lay aside a small amount of money each week in preparation for the Easter thank offering. A resolution was also passed that the Society hold a tea and sale of useful articles together with a rummage sale sometime during the Spring. At the close of the meeting a pleasant social hour was spent over the tea-cups.

Blindman Valley
Co-operative Assn.
Annual Meeting

Despite the fact that a blizzard was blowing on Saturday last, some 400 farmers and other interested people were present at the annual meeting of Blindman Valley Co-operative Association, held in the Rimby Community Hall. A special train was run out from Lacombe and about 150 people took advantage of this added accommodation. All roads into Rimby were impassable for automobiles, therefore there was not as large an attendance as was anticipated.

The meeting was called to order shortly after noon and Hon. W. Irving, M.P., was appointed chairman. Mr. Buchanan, President of the Rimby Board of Trade then gave an address of welcome to the members and congratulated them on the splendid attendance in spite of the adverse weather conditions, and said that in doing so they showed their enthusiasm and loyalty to their leaders. After this address of welcome the meeting got down to business, the first item of business being the financial statement which was read by Mr. Wright. The statement showed the Association to be in good, healthy financial condition. A gross total of $506,161.56 worth of business was shown by the report. The Association had handled 291 carloads or a total of 24,240 Hogs and had paid out to the producers $492,715.78 for hogs; 49 1-4 carloads or 1,306 head of cattle were handled, $71,013.37 being paid out in the cattle account. 908 head of sheep were handled and $6,615.30 paid to the sheep producers. The statement showed that a net surplus of $1,642.27 had been realized for the Association in the year. The association also owns $7151.79 worth of Stockyards, Scales and other equipment.

Mr. R. E. Chohan in his address to the meeting told step by step the history and progress of the association from the time of its organization to the present day. The Association began its career six years ago with a mere handful of farmers to begin with. The first president of the Association was E. J. Wright, and under his charge the Association gained many members, and at the end of the first year, over 300 members were on the list of the Pool. Mr. Chohan told of the trials and tribulations of organizing the first pool, and they were many and varied. Year after year the Association has made great progress until now it has 1300 members. Its annual payments have increased from a few thousand dollars to over $500,000.00 which for the short time the pool has been in existence is indeed a wonderful record. In its six years of operation there have been very few withdrawals, and many of the original members are still in the association. The new signers more than counteracted the withdrawals. Mr. Chohan also said that many who had withdrawn were now signed up again.

The proposed Packing Plant scheme of the Provincial Pool was discussed to some length. Mr. Chohan read the contract to the audience and a long discussion followed. Mr. Chohan was of the opinion that the Association should leave well enough alone and that by signing up with the Packing Plant scheme they would be getting into a business that they know nothing about. Clause after clause was taken from the contract and put before the meeting and explanations given as to the exact meaning of these clauses. Mr. Chohan believed the contract to be the most despot one he had ever read. The history of farmers packing plants was put before the meeting and it was shown that with few exceptions all these ventures had been absolute failures. A. B. Harstad, who represented the Provincial Pool was next to speak. He explained the benefits that would be derived by co-operating with the Provincial Pool in this Packing Plant project. He said that undoubtedly the plant would prove a money-maker for the producers, and that by owning a packing plant of their own and selling direct to the consumer, greater returns would be possible than at present. Mr. Harstad's address was put forth in a straight forward manner, and although his opinions and views were different from Mr. Chohan's, his argument was very logical. His speech was well received by the meeting. After another short discussion by Mr. Chohan a vote was taken on the question and the contract was voted down decisively.

Mr. D. M. Layton said, in regard to the Packing Plant—"This is not so much a case of packing plants, but a question of confederation. Are we joining with our province, or are we joining our own lone way?"

Mr. H. P. Houson, of Bentley in the Packing Plant discussion said: "We don't want a split in this pool, so we must go slow. But we have gone almost as far as we can go. We can store our wheat for two or three years, but we can't store our hogs."

Mr. G. Barbour, chief hog grader of the province spoke briefly on the production of the bacon hog vs. the heavy hog showing that several thousand dollars more had been turned to the farmers of this organization alone for select premium bacon hogs this year and that the increase in consumption in the dominion as per capita had increased from 96 pounds in 1926 to 92 pounds in 1935 owing to the fact that the consumers were able to get better bacon. Mr. Barbour's address was received with hearty applause.

A motion was passed asking the directors to make arrangements whereby in future the annual meeting could be held in June or July.

The last item of business was the election of officers. It was the unanimous wish of the assembly that the same officers be elected for another year. The officers are: President, R. E. Whowen, Bentley; Directors: J. E. Wetzel, D. M. Layton, Lockhart; F. J. Smith, Rimby; A. J. Dent, R. E. Chohan, Bentley; Direct: Bentley; J. B. Crooker, Lacombe and Leslie Mathieson, Lacombe.

How Cold Is It?

Seekers of information respecting the temperature during the past few days have kept The Albertan telephone busy to an extent rivaled only by inquiries after the result of any game in the world series. The weather, a never failing topic of conversation, has taken on a new interest in the exceptional circumstances and when the thermometer sinks to 32 below zero—an unusual attainment for Alberta thermometers—and we hear oldtimers remark, "That's nothing. Why, I remember in eighty-three—" it raises again the question as to whether our climate is really becoming any milder.

Figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that in 40 years' observations the lowest Alberta January temperature was 57 below zero and the mean daily minimum over the period 33 below zero. These means are not affected by the observations of 1917 which are not taken into account, they were so extraordinarily low that they might never recur in 100 years. It will be seen, therefore, that the 32 degrees below zero which we regard as abnormal is far from the temperatures sometimes known to the early settlers.

As to whether it is true that our climate is changing, Sir Frederick Stupart, then director of the Dominion Meteorological Service, wrote in the 1921 Canada Year Book, that in geological time not only Canada's climate but the world's had undergone great changes, a possible explanation for traces of bygone civilizations now to be found in almost uninhabited lands. In other words, climate is subject to pulsations the upward end of which we may now be feeling.

In view of these facts (he wrote) we may be fairly sure that in the seasons in Canada since Confederation there have been variations such as have occurred through the centuries and will occur in the future but we need not expect to find any marked climatic change.

may be true that temperatures today are on the whole higher than they once were, it is a matter of scientific opinion that this is not necessarily a condition which has come today.

Attack and Defence

As the opening day of the great naval conference approaches there are indications that, while there must necessarily be differences of opinion between the powers, difficulties once thought insuperable are already dissolving. Great Britain, to whom supremacy of the sea once seemed a virtually essential, now consents to talk of parity while retaining a sufficient fleet for the defence of the commerce at sea and for the far-flung possessions which rely on the Imperial government for defence.

Even Mr. Ramsey MacDonald, nothing if not an idealist in such matters, now concedes that nobody is going to propose anything which will endanger national security. His idea of equilibrium is a naval force of fleets, each capable of defence, but ineffective for attack. Granted the cable reports of Mr. MacDonald's statement are necessarily condensed, but at all events it may be assumed that the sense of what he said has not been changed. And therefore it is difficult to understand how a fleet—or any unit, whether on the sea, on land or in the air—which is ineffective in attack can be the slightest use in the defence. It is axiomatic that a defender may hold his enemies at arm's length, but that ultimately he must do more; he must drive them off and to do so he must sooner or later assume the role of the attacker.

It is probably true that what Mr. Ramsey MacDonald meant and what he advocates is a naval force strong enough to conduct a defensive war but not strong enough for aggressive purposes. Even so, the same principle is involved. If there is to be war at all it is quite obvious that one side must be the aggressor. It may not, and probably would not, be we. But, however he is, if our defence forces are not at least as strong as his he can hope to beat him off! And unless we can beat him off the defence fails and we are defeated just as effectively, but properly the cost of lives sacrificed to a futile defence, as if we had no navy and no army and no air force at all.

Another Board of Trade banquet will be held at the Church Hall on Tuesday evening, Jan. 28th. A turkey supper and a program well worth the price of admission. Hon.
